

13. (New) An attachment film for an electronic display, which is for adjusting the quantity of transmitted light from a light source and adjusting the black and white contrast, which comprises an adhesive layer which contains carbon black dispersed therein and contains a (meth)acrylate resin as an adhesive and a (meth)acrylate monomer or oligomer as a photopolymerizable compound and a photopolymerization initiator and is formed on one surface of a transparent substrate.